The image contains two screenshots of a web form for adding a contributor to a submission. The top screenshot shows the initial form with fields for 'Homepage URL', 'ORCID id', 'Bio Statement' (with rich text editing options), 'affiliation', and 'Contributor's role' (with 'Author' selected). The bottom screenshot shows the same form after some input, with the 'Publication Lists' section added at the bottom, containing a checked checkbox 'Include this contributor when identifying authors in lists of publications.' and a 'Save' button. Both screenshots show a dark sidebar on the left with navigation links like 'Back to Submissions' and 'Details'. The right side of the page shows a 'Review' tab and a 'Delete' button. At the very bottom of the entire image is a decorative illustration of a misty forest scene with evergreen trees and mountains.

8. Review all details and submit them

The screenshot shows a web interface for submitting a paper. At the top, there's a dark blue header with the conference name and a 'Back to Submissions' link. Below the header is a progress bar with five steps: Details, Upload Files, Contributors, For the Editors, and Review (the current step, marked with a '5'). The main content area is divided into two columns. The left column is titled 'Review and Submit' and contains instructions about reviewing the submission and editing details. The right column is titled 'Details' and contains three sections: 'Title' (Effect of pH and Temperature on Enzyme Activity of Chitosanase Produced Under Solid Stated Fermentation by Trichoderma spp.), 'Keywords' (Enzyme activity, Chitosan, pH, Temperature, Trichoderma spp.), and 'Abstract' (Trichoderma strains were extensively studied as biocontrol agents due to their ability of producing hydrolytic enzymes, which are considered key enzymes because they attack the insect exoskeleton allowing the fungi infection. The present work aimed to evaluate the ability of chitosanase production by).
